Brief History: The Palace

The 36-acre Palace area was acquired by State Government of Tamilnadu from the jagirdhars last descendant Srinivasa Rao sahib and established Regional Extension Training Centre, S.V. Nagaram (Currently named as RIRD&PR) in 1956, is located inside the palace area. Though RETC was started in 1956, the history of the palace has its foundations reaching back through centuries.

Veda ji Bhaskar Pant, a Maharashtra Brahmin, was associated with Shahaji, the father of Shivaji. Pant also accompanied Shahaji during his expedition to South India. Shahaji gifted this place to Veda ji Bhaskar Pant in 1640 AD, who was then called Zamindar / Jagir.

Jagir Venkatanatha Rao Sahib, the descendant of the Pant, constructed a Mutt & Moola Brindavana in 1825 for Sri Satya Vijaya Theertharu in this place and named it after him.

Located on the banks of the Kamandala-naga River. The palace or the Aranmanai was constructed adjacent to the Moola Brindavana.

Brief History: The Palace

The three storey main palace was constructed in 19th century with bricks, and over which lime mortar (A mixture of lime and sand) plastering was done followed by polishing process. Still, we can see and feel the smoothness of the wall in the unpeeled portions. Woods are used for support for the ceilings. The pillars are constructed with specially made semi-circular bricks, and round granite stones are used to increase the strength to hold the load.

The stucco work on the Pillars, above doors, ways, and windows, both inside and outside, is excellent with figures like lions, human faces, etc., and paintings are done on the ceilings and walls. The style of construction is called "Stuart Architecture".

The palace / Aranmandai was expanded in 1876 CE (a stone tablet was installed on an entrance wall),

Brief History: Rani Mahal

The Queen Palace is a three storey building which was constructed in French Architecture style with view point in the first floor through which the queen can watch shows conducted in dancing hall. In the Queen's Palace entrance, door glass has an etching of the Jagirdar emblem (an image of a fort and a hand with a sword). The Latin word 'PER DEUM-ET FERRUM OBTINUI' is written, and the meaning is "We got all these through GOD and our sword". Similar images can be seen in the Sadras Fort and Pulicat Dutch cemeteries. Once this building has also served as a classroom for Anna University Engineering College.

Located on the banks of the Kamandala-naga River. The palace or the Aranmanai was constructed adjacent to the Moola Brindavana. Currently, Renovation works for the dilapidated palace has been carried out by Public Works Department.

RIRD : Training Institute

Regional Extension Training Centre (Currently named as RIRD&PR), S.V. Nagaram is one of the Rural Development training centres started in the year 1956, when the State Government launched the massive programme of training of Village Level Workers, as a prelude to the implementation of Community Development Programmes. RETC was renamed as Regional Institute of rural development & panchayat raj (RIRD) on 2004.

At present RIRD & PR S.V.Nagaram caters the residential training for the Rural Development Department officials and Elected representatives, of Village Panchayats and Panchayat unions of 07 districts namely Tiruvannamalai, Kancheepuram, Chengalpet, Villupuram, Kallakurichi, Cuddalore and Tiruvallur districts which comprises 81 Blocks and 3802 village panchayats.

RIRD, SV Nagaram spreads its wings by hosting training to various departments includes Health, Education, TNSRLM, Disabled, Treasury etc., and PAI training to State / Block level Nodal Officers from 18 Line Departments (administrative agencies that directly perform primary Government functions) and we also conduct NIRD&PR, Hyderabad Off campus training.
